

In the middle of my playing career, I decided to stop signing autographs. In part, my feelings about autographs is based upon my belief that I'd rather meet someone who approaches me respectfully, talk to them for a minute and look them in the eye, rather than participate in the momentary ritual of signing something, never looking at the person I'm signing something for, never getting to know them, and then moving on.

Bill Russell

Wall of Respect Hero

talk to them for a minute

talk to them for a minute

talk to them for a minute

talk to them for a minute

look them in the eye

look them in the eye

look them in the eye

look them in the eye

look them in the eye